

BBC 6 Minute English Listening Practice

The Country That Measures Happiness

Name: _____

Class: _____

Score: _____ / 20

No.	Sentence
1	Gross National Happiness links development with the _____ of nature and culture.
2	Bhutan tries to follow a model of sustainable and _____.
3	For a long time, Bhutan had limited contact with the _____.
4	The King wanted people to gain the advantages of _____ without harming traditions.
5	Modernisation was expected to protect culture, the environment and Bhutan's strong _____.
6	Citizens' happiness became the country's central _____.
7	Some workers left Bhutan to look for _____ and opportunities abroad.
8	The Mindfulness City is planned to run on _____.
9	The city aims to bring back _____ who have gained experience overseas.
10	Workers may apply abilities developed overseas through _____.

11 What makes Bhutan's approach to national progress different from a purely economic model?

- A It rejects modern development completely.
- B It places environmental and cultural goals above unrestricted growth.
- C It measures success only through religious practice.
- D It depends mainly on international tourism.

12 What tension was the King trying to manage?

- A Attracting tourists while removing television.
- B Increasing exports while reducing local jobs.
- C Replacing Buddhist traditions with new policies.
- D Opening up to technology while protecting cultural life.

Answers written in the margins will not be marked.

Answers written in the margins will not be marked.

- 13 Why is Bhutan presented as having a particularly well-preserved culture?
- A It avoided colonisation and kept its traditions largely undamaged.
 - B It banned outside experts from influencing government policy.
 - C It developed faster than most other Asian countries.
 - D It used tourism to rebuild lost cultural practices.
- 14 What does the phrase "took centre stage" suggest in this context?
- A It became a public performance for citizens.
 - B It was discussed only in cultural events.
 - C It became the main focus of government thinking.
 - D It was treated as less urgent than growth.
- 15 What problem did Bhutan face despite global admiration for its happiness policy?
- A Foreign workers were replacing local communities.
 - B Skilled citizens were leaving for better opportunities abroad.
 - C The government stopped investing in education.
 - D Tourists were discouraged by environmental rules.
- 16 How is The Mindfulness City characterised?
- A A conventional industrial zone for foreign investors.
 - B A heritage district designed mainly for tourists.
 - C A temporary employment scheme outside Bhutan.
 - D A new city guided by spiritual and environmental values.
- 17 Why is the project linked to Bhutan's brain drain?
- A It is intended to draw back people who have left the country.
 - B It will prevent all young people from studying overseas.
 - C It replaces local workers with foreign experts.
 - D It mainly records why citizens choose to migrate.
- 18 What value might returning migrants bring to The Mindfulness City?
- A They can help Bhutan depend less on environmental policies.
 - B They can introduce colonisation-era traditions.
 - C They can use skills acquired from overseas work.
 - D They can make the city separate from local society.

19 What does "upskilling" refer to in this discussion?

- A Moving trained workers permanently overseas.
- B Creating higher salaries without extra training.
- C Selecting only foreign experts for a project.
- D Improving workers' abilities through training.

20 What broader conclusion is drawn about Bhutan's model?

- A It attempts to combine economic development with citizens' wellbeing.
- B It proves economic growth is unnecessary for happiness.
- C It shows migration can be solved without policy action.
- D It argues that technology is harmful in every country.