- 12 Which description best reflects the design of The Enhanced Games?
- A It focuses on three sports and aims to produce world-record performances.
 - B It includes the full Olympic programme and aims to improve drug research.
 - C It centres on team sports and gives participation priority over results.
 - D It is limited to weightlifting and accepts only former Olympic medallists.
- 13 Which group of substances is explicitly permitted at the event?
- A Steroids, painkillers and antibiotics
 - B Vitamins, growth hormones and painkillers
 - C Stimulants, antibiotics and vitamins
 - D Steroids, growth hormones and stimulants
- 14 Which principle is behind the sports fan's refusal to support the event?
- A Spectators should receive full medical information about every athlete.
 - B Competitors should begin and perform under comparable conditions.
 - C Only regular sports viewers can judge whether competition is fair.
 - D Performance benefits should remain secret until an event has finished.
- 15 Why do the organisers compare open drug use with secret drug use elsewhere?
- A To argue that approval and supervision make their approach relatively safer
 - B To suggest that secret users are more likely to break world records
 - C To show that professional competitions already permit the same substances
 - D To claim that medical supervision removes every possible health danger
- 16 Which concern best represents the critics' view of the event?
- A Its narrow choice of sports makes its records difficult to compare.
 - B Its drug-approval procedure is too secret for competitors to trust.
 - C It may damage sport's integrity and put participants' health at risk.
 - D Its former Olympians are more interested in money than in competition.
- 17 How does the sports fan respond after hearing arguments from both sides?
- A He accepts the event because the drug use is medically supervised.
 - B He becomes uncertain because both sides offer reasonable arguments.
 - C He supports it only if every athlete receives the same drugs.
 - D He remains opposed because unfair competition defeats sport's purpose.

- 18 What limitation is implied in the organisers' claim that their approach is safer?
- A It applies only to competitors who have never taken drugs secretly.
 - B It is a comparison with secret use, not a claim that no risk exists.
 - C It depends on all other sporting competitions ending their drug bans.
 - D It concerns athletic performance rather than the way drugs are taken.
- 19 How does the idea of "setting a bad example" support the critics' warning about normalising doping?
- A It suggests that imitation could make doping seem increasingly acceptable.
 - B It proves that every spectator will begin taking performance drugs.
 - C It shows that medical staff are responsible for changing sports rules.
 - D It means that former Olympians have already influenced all younger athletes.
- 20 What overall conclusion is best supported by the discussion?
- A Official drug approval resolves both the fairness and health objections.
 - B A small range of sports prevents the event from affecting wider attitudes.
 - C Medical controls have not settled the broader controversy over enhanced sport.
 - D Continued criticism shows that secret drug use is the safer alternative.
