

BBC 6 Minute English Listening PracticeIs Breakfast The Most Important Meal Of The Day?

Name: _____

Class: _____

Score: _____ / 25

No.	Sentence
1	Traditional advice suggests having a substantial morning meal and eating like a _____ in the evening
2	Professor Alexandra Johnstone recommends breakfast for those wanting to maintain _____ or reduce body weight
3	The body is more efficient at _____ food consumed in the morning
4	Blood sugar levels won't _____ as much when eating early
5	Consuming food earlier may help burn slightly more _____
6	Eating earlier might also burn slightly more _____
7	Later in the day, the body's _____ functions at a reduced rate
8	Eating identical food at various times causes blood sugar levels to _____ more dramatically in afternoon and evening
9	Studies show individuals who consume _____ tend to have lower body fat
10	Consuming the main meal during _____ provides superior regulation of hunger
11	Better _____ makes managing food consumption easier throughout the day
12	This helps people control _____ more effectively in later hours
13	People sometimes don't eat breakfast because they want to _____
14	A person who is not overweight can be described as _____
15	Survey data comes from research conducted by a _____

Answers written in the margins will not be marked.

Answers written in the margins will not be marked.

What is Professor Alexandra Johnstone's stance on the phrase "breakfast like a king and dine like a pauper"?

- A She doubts the importance of breakfast for weight management
- B She agrees it is important, especially for weight control
- C She prefers having a small breakfast and a large dinner
- D She thinks the phrase is outdated and irrelevant

How does the term 'pauper' relate to the discussion on meal patterns?

- A It describes a rich person eating a large meal
- B It is an old-fashioned word meaning someone very poor
- C It means eating breakfast very quickly
- D It refers to skipping dinner completely

According to Courtney Peterson, why does eating a large meal earlier in the day benefit your body?

- A Your metabolism processes food more efficiently earlier, preventing large blood sugar spikes
- B Eating later in the day helps your metabolism work faster and burn more calories
- C Eating large meals only at night improves fat burning throughout the day
- D Your body metabolizes ice cream better in the evening than in the morning

What does the term 'metabolism' refer to as explained in the programme?

- A The rate at which your blood sugar rises after eating
- B Chemical reactions in your body that convert food into energy
- C Physical exercise that burns calories
- D The process of digesting specific food types only

What is the specific meaning of 'spike' as used when talking about blood sugar levels?

- A A gradual increase in blood sugar
- B A sudden sharp rise in the measured value
- C A steady decrease over time
- D Blood sugar remaining unchanged

What is the suggested effect of eating breakfast according to observational studies?

- A People skipping breakfast tend to be leaner and have better appetite control
- B Those who eat breakfast regularly tend to be leaner with better appetite regulation
- C Skipping breakfast leads to faster metabolism but worse appetite control
- D Eating breakfast has no impact on appetite or weight

What is the main reason Alexandra Johnstone gives for recommending a large breakfast?

- A It helps people feel less hungry later and control food intake better
- B It ensures you get all your daily nutrients in one meal
- C It prevents blood sugar from rising at all during the day
- D It is easier to prepare than large dinners

What does it mean to 'skip breakfast' according to the discussion?

- A To eat a very light breakfast early in the morning
- B To spend extra time preparing breakfast
- C To not eat breakfast at all
- D To eat breakfast at a different time of the day

What does 'appetite control' mean in the context of this programme?

- A The frequency at which you exercise after meals
- B Brain's regulation of how much food you eat
- C The variety of foods you choose for breakfast
- D Avoiding snacks between meals to lose weight

According to the quiz result in the programme, what is the overall most popular breakfast in the UK?

- A Eggs
- B Toast
- C Cereal
- D Pastry